

A photograph showing a line of 12 puppies of various shades of brown and tan, each eating from a small white bowl. The bowls are arranged in a diagonal line across a grey concrete floor that has a prominent crack running parallel to the line of puppies. The puppies are of different sizes, suggesting they are at various stages of growth. In the background, a white wall and a metal fence are visible.

Theory